What service simplification really means

'Education Administration and Student Experience' or EASE is part of a larger programme called 'Service Simplification'.

In practice, it is a restructuring of professional services roles across academic areas.

It has already been carried out in some faculties and Engineering is next on the chopping block.

Learn more

We aren't opposed to change, we welcome improvements that will benefit staff and students, but EASE is whitewashed cost-cutting, with little regard for good professional service practice. If we don't act now, we risk continued bulldozing of the academic board and unions, setting a dangerous precedent for the future.

Our demands

- Pause current and future EASE and MarComms proposals
- Agree to no compulsory staff redundancies or downgrading
- Commit to consult meaningfully with the academic community and trade unions
- Recognise the skills, value and experience of specialist staff
